Transparency and Accountability. The requirement for accountability and transparency is most pronounced with regard to financial management. This is because the organisation is most likely, now or in the future, to receive monies by way of grant or donation. An organisation will demonstrate its accountability by being able to produce an accurate and verifiable record of how it has spent a particular grant.

Abstract. This discussion raises issues concerning financial reporting transparency. We first observe that transparency is not well-defined in a financial reporting context. Extrapolating from the ways transparency is used in other contexts, we define financial reporting transparency as the extent to which financial reports reveal an entity's underlying economics in a way that is readily understandable by those using the financial reports.
